THE BAD...
Deadline made her last deadline.

...AND THE GOOD...
Hans Beacham, of Cameron, Austin, and Mexico City, has published a booklet of sketches, "A Modest Madness," which anticipates an exhibition of his recent work at The University Health Science Center in San Antonio this fall.

He is known for his photography in Europe, the Western Hemisphere, often taken for Texas Quarterly. I once reviewed a book of photographs he published on Mexican architecture perhaps six years ago. He also writes poetry and sketches.

Pamela Neeley, of Cameron and New York City, is among perhaps 40 singers in final auditions for resident study at the Lyric Opera of Chicago. She had auditioned in New York in June and felt her singing wasn't up to par.

But as it happened, she learned by phone only four days after her first successful recital here that she was due in Chicago for final auditioning. I think she's going to do well.

A year's study is the prize for about four of the young singers, among the best in musical comedy and operatic work in the country. She's 27.

James Brock, Cameron sculptor exhibiting in Taos, N. M. and Houston, has finished two recent exhibitions in Salado and Fort Worth. He periodically shows his bronzes in Texas exhibits.

116-116-116

Danny Kelley, of Cameron and Baltimore, is studying under a Ford Foundation grant and anticipating at least two concerts later in the year. He and Pamela Neeley may appear together in recital back in Cameron next spring.

116-116-116

Donald Pimpler, oil and water color artist, and Maxie Morgan, metal sculptor, will join Brock in the second annual Arts and Crafts show in Cameron October 11. Both young artists have displayed their work around Texas.

116-116-116

Portia Kruse, of Cameron and several other artistic ports of call, is busy, 116 is sure, continuing yet another career in art. She is an accomplished artist in oils, characterizing what I think is a unique and growing dimension of a Central Texas town. There may be others, but these I know.

116-116-116

Incidentally, 116 puts a brief bit of Cameron before Cen-Tex at 12:30 p.m. Sunday on KCEN-TV, Channel 6. It's about five and a half minutes of history of the town, the county, and perhaps a surprising annotation about the original scope of the place called Milam County.

Thanks to Jim Ham for asking the questions and to some history buffs for asking me to be there.

Incidentally, I miss that silly cat.

REACT Plans

Labor Day

Rest Stop

Milam County REACT plans to have its annual Labor Day rest stop for motorists starting Friday afternoon and staying open through Monday. The rest stop will be located in its usual place across Little River bridge.

Last year, 1,326 travelers signed the register at the rest stop. Monday, Gov. Dolph Briscoe said he is "appalled" at the prediction of fatalities for Labor Day weekend issued by the Department of Public Safety.

Said Briscoe, "In 1973, 38 persons were killed over the holiday. Last year 51 were killed and now the estimate is set for 42 deaths for this Labor Day. While this is lower than 1974, it is ridiculous for us to accept it as routine. When we know in advance the number of people to be slain in traffic wrecks, it would appear that we could take additional action to avoid this unnecessary killing."

Firemen Answer Call

Cameron volunteer firemen answered calls Monday and Tuesday, one to the 800 block of West 3 1/2 St. Monday night where fire gutted a house, and one on Tuesday to a trash fire behind Walled Lake Door Co.

Alcoa Scholarships Open For Students

Sons and daughters of Alcoas throughout Central Texas are applying for two $4,000 four-year Alcoa Foundation college scholarships awarded annually at the company's Rockdale Works.

Since the corporate-wide program began in 1953, 32 scholarships have been given to dependents of local employees, according to Fred P. Bergeron, Alcoa's Texas area manager. Last spring's winners were Edward Zott and Nancy Krall, both of Yoe High School in Cameron. Bergeron said applications for this year's scholarships are available at the plant through departmental supervisors. Candidates must fill out applications and give them to their high school principals no later than Friday, September 9.

Applicants must have at least a C-plus average or be in the upper half of their senior class, Bergeron said. The award program includes step-children of Alcoas if they reside in the employee's household, whether or not they have been legally adopted, he explained.

Also, candidates' parents must have three years continuous service with the company. Sons and daughters of retired or deceased Alcoas are eligible, if their parent completed three years continuous service immediately prior to retirement or death.

The local Alcoa Foundation college Scholarship selection board, chaired by Dr. Walter Vincent, superintendent of the Rockdale Independent School District, will screen applications to determine eligibility.

"Students who qualify will meet at Rockdale High School September 16 to complete applications to take the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) November 1, administered by the College Entrance Examination Board," Bergeron said.

Local Schools Enroll 1,584

IT'S ALL IN A DAYS WORK for first grade teacher Mary Kay King, who seems to be enjoying the second day of school. One youngster at right, however, seems to have given up in exhaustion as he lays his head on his desk for a post-recess break.

Superintendent Expects More To Register

Enrollment in Cameron schools on the first day, Monday, totaled 1,584, about the same as last year, and School Supt. Buddy Dulin expects about 100 more to register after Labor Day.

Dulin reported that a total of 288 students are registered at Ben Milam Elementary, with 58 kindergarten students, 129 in the first grade, and 101 in the second grade.

At Ada Henderson, 124 registered for third grade, 129 in fourth grade, and 132 in fifth, for a total of 385.

O. J. Thomas School has 142 in the sixth grade, 136 in seventh grade, and 124 in the eighth for a total of 402.

A large freshman class of 167 tops the grades in high school, which shows 131 in the tenth grade, 112 in eleventh, and 99 seniors. This makes a total of 509 for Yoe High.

Dulin reminds students and parents that Monday, September 1, is a school holiday.

ICA To Discuss Brucellosis Meet At Austin

The Milam County Independent Cattlemen's Association will meet Tuesday night, September 2, at 8:30 p.m. at the Ponderosa Restaurant in Cameron.

The main subjects of discussion will be a barbecue and dance Sunday, September 28, and the upcoming hearings on additional brucellosis regulations.

Charles Ellison of Rosebud, secretary for the Association, said there have been hearings held all over the state on the brucellosis problem and the final statewide hearing will be held on September 4 in Austin at the Sam Houston Building, Room 117 at 9 a.m.

The ICA's Brucellosis Committee will be at this meeting.

"We feel that every county should send to this meeting anyone who is interested in what happens in the future on the program," Ellison said. "This is a very important meeting for all cattlemen in the state of Texas."

Buckholts Superintendent Resigns, Trustees View Accreditation

The Buckholts Independent School District board of trustees "reluctantly" accepted the resignation of Supt. Leon Brady at a special meeting called Monday night. They also plan to meet September 2 to appoint a steering committee to oversee a new accreditation program.

The board voted to select seven persons to formulate plans on curriculum, finance, building maintenance, and administration in order to meet Texas Education Agency accreditation requirements.

Board members will meet September 5 with an accreditation consultant to discuss the program. The steering committee will begin its action then.

In other business, the school board met with Milam County Tax Collector Valter White to discuss the collection of delinquent taxes. White said the county tax office could not assemble a delinquent tax roll until October 1 unless tax office employees are willing to work overtime.

The board approved an early admissions program to permit Buckholts High School seniors to attend classes at Temple Junior College. They also changed the calendar to include a September 5 work day for teachers to meet with the accreditation consultant.

Board members discussed a suit alleging job discrimination pending against the school in U. S. District Court in Waco. The suit was filed by Frederick Griffin, a math teacher who was not re-employed.

Supt. Brady, in a telephone interview, told The Herald, that he put no deadline on his resignation--that he will serve until a new superintendent is hired. Brady, who has served as Buckholts superintendent for 13 years, said he is "tired" and feels that he should turn the job over to someone else at this time.

"It takes a lot to run a little school," Brady said, since the superintendent has to do all the jobs normally handled by a staff in larger schools. "If I quit now, I can help the new man," Brady added.

Brady said he has been thinking of resigning for a couple of years. He has about two more years to go on his present contract, and was offered a new contract by trustees.

"I feel it is best for the school and the community that I resign," Brady said, and added that possibly a younger man could bring new enthusiasm to the job.

Brady said he plans to remain in Buckholts and will continue to help the school in any way he can.

P&W Survey Shows Good Dove Prospects

AUSTIN
A mid-August survey of Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists, game wardens, and information officers across the state paints a relatively bright picture for upcoming North and South Zone mourning dove seasons.

Generally, where there are grains or weed seeds there are birds.

But knowing the fickle nature of mourning doves, P&WD officials are quick to warn that predictions made even the day before the season opener can quickly change.

Statewide dove project leader Jim Dunks said, overall, that hunters have a 60 percent chance for a good dove hunt opening day September 1 in the North Zone.

Long-time dove project worker John Roberson said the Edwards Plateau and Central Texas Blackland Prairie have produced a dove crop well above average, even after some early failures because of spring storms.

According to Roberson, the length of time the harvested Central Texas maize fields remain unplowed will determine to a large extent how long doves remain in the area. After farmers plow under the fields the doves will often leave.

Game wardens in the Georgetown and Belton areas of Central Texas report very good dove populations around the maize fields. Continuing rains are providing a late ragweed, doveweed, and sunflower crop which should hold birds in the area.

With the exceptions of the western parts of the state, shooting around water holes will not be as productive as in dryer years. Ample rains over most of Texas should scatter the birds and keep them from concentrating around one water supply.

Ample food also will scatter the doves.

P&WD officials urge dove hunters to consult a copy of the 1975-76 mourning dove and whitewing hunting regulations before taking to the field. North and South Zone hunting, whitewing hunting, closed areas, and all-day hunting during the winter for the South Zone present a complicated picture for shotguns.

ELECTRONIC NOSE--Barry Clark, environmental technologist for Aluminum Company of America, checks mobile equipment used to test air quality. The trailers record various pollutants and meteorological data, all of which are stored on magnetic tapes. The trailer is used to assure effectiveness of the company's environmental control activities. The company just completed two environmental improvement projects totaling over $11 million at its Rockdale Works in Central Texas--the nation's largest aluminum smelter.

Mrs. White Joins Herald Staff As News Writer

Mrs. Doris Wossum White has joined The Herald staff and will be writing and editing the "Happening About Town" page, along with other assignments. She replaces Patti Chubb who is attending A&M University.

A native of Amarillo, Mrs. White is a graduate of McMurry College in Abilene where she majored in religious education and minored in history. She is now working toward a Masters degree in pastoral counseling.

Mrs. White's husband, Jesse, is teaching fourth grade at Ada Henderson School. He is also a McMurry graduate with a secondary education degree, specializing in history and English. He also has an elementary education degree.

Local club reporters are invited to call Mrs. White with news of their organizations. Mrs. White will also handle weddings and engagements and other social items.

Needs Over Tradition...

The Herald has been boosting a new Texas constitution from the time we first read the present instrument and its some 200 amendments.

We support the vote to modernize the constitution in the fall.

A couple of years ago, we joined other newspapers in recommending consolidation, modern language, and end to 19th century verbosity and 16th century King James legalese, among other things. These suggestions went before the constitutional commission which proposed most of the substantial modernization to be voted, those proposals first turned down by the Legislature, sitting at a constitutional convention, then approved as Legislature some months later.

The Texas Press Association is hosting a dual session on news and the constitution in September, focusing attention on the need to get the basic Texas law toward the 21st century.

Not only the press, but other interests must evaluate themselves in terms of where this state will be in but 25 years. Arguing in interests in 1975 in terms of a century-old constitution is futile.

A hundred years might as well be a thousand years considering the things transpiring in Texas.

It is the third most populous state, has the sixth largest city, has the second largest agribusiness system, the largest state oil production and the largest petrochemical complex in the free world, one of the most dynamic industrial growth factors in the country, several of the Western World's finest political, legal, and social science talents, to name only a few reasons why.

These reasons are enough special interest to outweigh the uncertainty which apparently causes Governor Dolph Briscoe misgivings on some of the components.

A modern constitution at state level will have greater value in the future because central government is so complex, so over-wrought with incalculable inefficiencies, the surviving modern states, particularly of Texas' size, will be more competent than ever to deal with the 21st century.

Such thinking went into the press' recommending an end to verbosity and statutory treatment of basic constitutional text. It is absurd for a state constitution to be amended almost 10 times as often as the federal instrument.

We support an end to this view. We support this proposal. And we urge Governor Briscoe to join other Texas political leaders in examining elements of this document in terms of 21st century needs, not 19th century tradition.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

SENATOR HUMPHREY AIRS WHEAT PROTEIN DISPUTE

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.)... The protein level for wheat is a critical factor in determining the price which is offered for much of the wheat which is being harvested this year, according to some grain buyers, the protein levels have dropped to or are below the 11-percent level. This is a critical point, and a 14-percent protein level will bring the producer 56 cents more per bushel than the posted prices.

"(An) article from (The New York Times) was ordered printed in the Record"

In Wheat Belt: Protein Dispute
(By H. J. Maidenberger)

Big Sandy, Mont. -- Americans may well sing of amber waves of grain as the nation winds up a historic harvest of 1.7 billion bushels of wheat this month. But to the wheat growers who planted that record crop last fall, the music carries some discordant notes because the protein content of the hard red winter wheat produced in Montana's "Big Sky" country and other areas is down again this season.

Protein is not only the basic substance of life -- to growers of quality wheat it also represents the difference between high profits and nine months of wasted time and money, regardless of the size of the crop. To make matters worse, farmers and the grain elevator operators here complain bitterly of a "conspiracy" by wheat buyers to deny them the normal premiums they receive for protein content.

As far as the milling and baking industry is concerned, the protein factor is essential not only for its nutritional value but also for the production of quality bread and rolls. Without at least 11 percent protein, bread loses its firmness and structure, making automated packaging a nightmare.

A lack of protein causes stacked bread on grocery shelves to collapse, giving customers the impression of being offered short-weighted or damaged goods.

Foreign buyers of wheat insist on high protein because bread is still a major source of that key element in their diet. Because of the decline in supplies of high-protein wheat today, exporters may be forced to compete against domestic flour millers and bakers for available stocks, despite the record grain crops forecast for this season.

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

It will come as a surprise to most consumers that the protein content of wheat is that important to millers and bakers -- and buyers for export.

Campaigns Begin On New Constitution

Campaigns for and against a new Texas constitution are getting off the ground.

Proponents of the far-reaching revision to be voted on November 4 have opened an Austin headquarters under the direction of former State Supreme Court Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert and State Rep. Ronald Earle of Austin.

Opponents, for the time being led by State Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler, are setting up shop in an office building across the street.

First copies of a proposed voter's guide to the revision document were placed in the mail last week. They present complete text of the eight propositions to be voted on, with a comparison summary of the "old" and "new" constitutional provisions.

Acknowledged opposition has centered largely on the proposal for annual sessions of the legislature -- a 140-day session during odd-numbered years and a 90-day meeting on even-numbered years.

House Speaker Bill Clayton and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, concerned over effect of the opposition, asked an attorney general's opinion on whether the short, even-year session could be limited by law or legislative rule to budgetary and emergency matters.

Their proposal immediately stirred strong disapproving comment from both proponents and opponents of revision, indicating, perhaps, a hot campaign during the next three months.

Ouster Rules Drawn

A Senate committee approved rules for the impeachment trial by 31 senators of 229th District Judge O. P. Carrillo September 3.

Carrillo personally appeared at the committee hearing with his attorneys, Leon Jaworski, the former Watergate prosecutor, who will be special counsel to the Senate presiding officer, urged proceedings be conducted on a high plane in strict accord with the rules.

The committee tentatively approved live broadcast news coverage of the trial and recommended a gag rule to restrict comments by senators on proceedings in which they sit as court and jury.

Carrillo subsequently has been indicted by a Jim Wells County grand jury. He already faced a September 3 trial date on an income tax case in federal court at Corpus Christi and an October 2 hearing by a Judicial Qualifications Commission master in removal proceedings.

Allowable Wide Open Again

The Railroad Commission set the oil allowable for the 42nd straight month at 100 per cent of potential.

Commissioner Jim Langdon said a 15 per cent shortfall is expected in interstate gas pipelines this winter.

Any action by the federal government to take Texas gas reserves to make up for shortages in other states would amount to "a rape of Texas," Langdon commented.

"If it is a cold winter, and indications are that it will be, things are going to be pretty tough, gentlemen," Langdon told oil and gas company representatives at the Commission's meeting to set the allowable.

AG Opinions

A state representative who intentionally charges expenditures to the state in excess of the authorized amount is subject to prosecution under the penal code, Atty. Gen. John Hill held.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:

A neighbor the other day asked me a question. "Why," he said, "can't the Russians grow all the grain they need? They've got more land than we have, they've got more people, they've got enough tractors, they're even exporting tractors, so why can't they feed themselves?"

Obviously, he doesn't understand the soil of Russia. You see, Russian soil is not all the same.

For example, as you know, the state over there owns all the land, and what a farmer produces on that land goes to the state, with one exception. Each farmer is allowed a small plot, maybe a fifth of an acre, maybe a half, but not more than one whole acre, on which he can grow what he pleases and keep it all himself or sell it and keep the money.

It's amazing how much better those small plots are than the rest of the farm. Why, the average Russian farmer can grow ten times as much per square foot on his part than he can on the state's.

This has baffled the Soviet leaders. They just can't figure it out. The land is the same, one part gets just as much or as little rain as the rest, yet invariably the small plots out-produce.

I understand this matter has come up before the Politburo year after year, but not a single Russian leader has found the answer. Even Russian scientists are baffled by the problem, or if they aren't baffled, they ain't saying nothing. It's cold in Siberia.

I can see the Minister of Agriculture tackling the problem himself. "Ivan," he says, after Ivan has just come in from an 8-hour day on state-owned land driving a state-owned tractor that needs oil but he'll get around to that tomorrow or sometime, "how it is that you always produce better cabbage in your garden here than you do out there in the field?"

"I've always wondered about that myself," Ivan probably says. "It's hard to explain. Maybe the soil is better. Here, take this nice head of cabbage home to your wife and kids. Want some of these potatoes? They taste better than those field-grown ones."

There's a great opportunity in Russia for better soil scientists

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Tractor Pull At La Grange

If you've never seen a Tractor Pulling Contest you'll never quite believe the folks who tell about it. They tell stories of a bunch of farmers on a built-up dirt track 30' wide and 300' long who cause as much excitement as a football game between two local teams. They say that an ordinary guy in work clothes can rev-up his IHC, Case, Deere, or what have you and a few minutes later have you and the rest of the crowd standing on their feet cheering, jumping up and down, waving their arms, and loudly expressing their pleasure as their favorite tractor pulls the weighted weight-transfer sled down the track. But it happens. Recently it's been happening in towns across the southwest since the first big championship pull at Fort Worth in 1972. This year, towns like Waco, Lamesa, Gainesville, Lubbock, San Angelo, LaGrange, Vernon, Snyder, Petersburg, Durant, and Elk City have had exciting pulls. The La Grange pull will be the third year in a row that they have had their implement dealers involved in this part of their County Fair.

Tractor Pulls, of course, are the off shoots of horse and mule pulling contests. They were started in the Mid West soon after World War II and have now experienced tremendous growth nation wide.

Today's version calls for the contestant to hook up to a heavy, flat-bottomed sled and see how far he can pull it down the track. Weight is added to the sled, by means of a mechanical device, as the sled is moved down the track.

This uniformly increases the weight of the sled as the tractor moves forward.

According to Jerry Willis, of Grandview, a member of the Rules Advisory Committee of the Southwest Tractor Pullers Association, this puts no more strain on a tractor that it would have while pulling a heavy chisle in a hard wheat field. Of course, Willis adds, the tractor should be tuned and ready to do its best when it hooks onto the sled.

Willis urged local farmers to become a part of this exciting sport by entering their tractors in the weight classes provided for them at the LaGrange Pull.

County Agent Notes...

Agent Raps Meany Policy

By Bill McCutchen

George Meany and his Longshoremans decided that they were smart enough to run this country and international policies recently by refusing to load any grain bound for Russia under the new trade agreement. Admittedly he was not worried about shortages of foodstuffs in this country, he was worried about the price of food going up and hauling more grain in American ships. In case he hasn't recognized it yet, the price of farm commodities has very little effect on food prices. Labor, one segment of what he represents, tacks on the big portion to the food tab.

The farmer and rancher was the scapegoat a couple of years ago during the beef boycotts. High prices to producers were blamed for higher retail prices. Well, beef prices are now below break-even prices for producers in many instances and retail prices almost match those that caused consumer boycotts in 1973.

Relating this to the wheat situation, the comparison is again similar as wheat prices influence bread prices very little. Labor is the item causing most of the markup. How would Labor feel if the general public said no more pay raises until we are sure the cost of food, goods, and services won't go up.

Many things have been said about the favorable trade balance the United States has achieved in recent years because of agricultural exports and the manner in which this helps strengthen the buying power, I really can't add to that.

I would like to point out, however, that during the recent "fertilizer shortage" the American farmer was told that we would have to compete on the world market for his fertilizer, and he has done that. The farmer has had to compete on the world market for his machinery and like the rest of us, with decontrolled oil prices we will be competing on the world market for fuel.

I would like someone, preferably Mr. Meany, to tell the American farmers, when they are competing on the world market for their inflated inputs in a crop, why they should not be able to reap a fair profit by also selling produce on the world market.

It is impossible to build a strong agriculture and have ample low cost foods unless the farmer is encouraged to produce by fair profits and this is something Labor management should know.

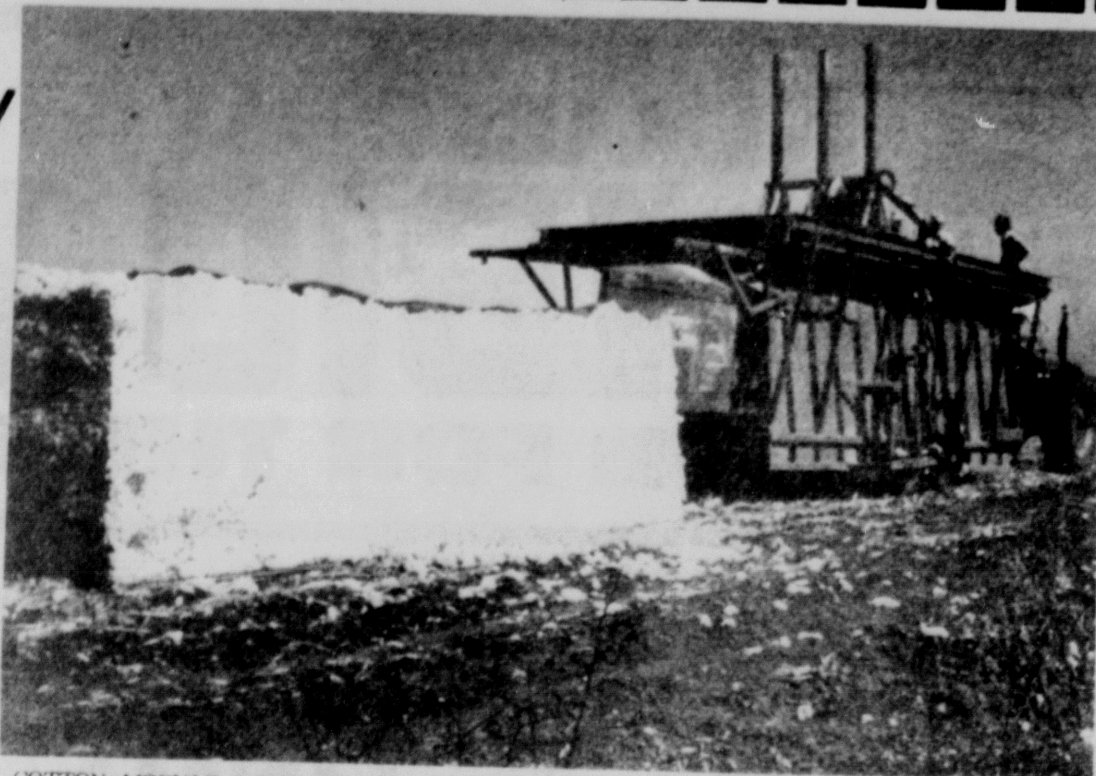

The American farmer hasn't yet come close to producing his maximum. He just can't afford any more expensive inputs without some assurance that they will be profitable enough to take care of his family, maintain his equipment and make a $75 per acre or more investment in putting in a crop the following year.

Agriculture is seemingly one of the few industries that still works almost entirely on the traditional American system of supply and demand. If you don't believe it look what strong grain prices last year did to increase grain acreages this year and look what weak cotton prices last year did to cotton acreage in 1975.

In other words, the best way to assure an ample supply of inexpensive bread is to give the farmers an incentive to produce by making it a paying proposition.

Sentiments are for the most part traditional; we feel them because they were felt by those who preceded us.

COTTON MODULE FORMED IN FIELD—That is what a cotton module looks like after being formed by the unit on the right. The cotton is compressed in the form so that it makes a solid unit in which the crop can be stored safely in the field for at least 45 days if it is harvested at 12 percent or less moisture.

Stiles Demonstration Set On Field Storing Cotton

THRALL Storing harvested cotton in the field in modules and then hauling the crop to the gin later has a number of advantages. And cotton producers in the Central Texas Blacklands will have an opportunity to see this new module building technique demonstrated at the Stiles Farm on Thursday, Sept. 4 at 4 p.m. In addition, a new research development, special dump trailers that can be used in module building, will be demonstrated for the first time. The Stiles Farm is located one mile east of Thrall on U. S. Highway 79 in Williamson County.

Dr. Calvin Parnell, cotton ginning and mechanization specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, will be in charge of the demonstration. Working with him will be Lambert Wilkes, agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, who is credited with developing the mechanics for field storing cotton. Williamson County Extension Agent John Wakefield, Stiles Farm manager Calvin Rinn, and several local producers.

In addition to Wakefield, Parnell, and Wilkes, others who will speak during the demonstration and program include Dr. Bob Metzger, Extension cotton specialist, and Lee Warner, with Cotton, Inc. According to Parnell, the entire module building concept will be demonstrated. Use of the special trailers, which were also developed by Wilkes in cooperation with Cotton, Inc., allows the small cotton producer to use the module building system without having to purchase the entire system.

"Storing cotton in modules either at a central location or at a gin yard allows the producer to make maximum use of his harvesting capacity and also allows him to be independent of ginning capacity," points out Parnell. "In other words, he can harvest his cotton when it's ready. He doesn't have to worry about having enough trailers or about having the trailers tied up at the gin."

"The module building concept allows farmers to get their cotton off the stalk when it's ready to harvest and therefore reduces losses that might come from adverse weather conditions." Research has shown that cotton modules can be stored for 45 days with no loss in lint and seed quality, provided the cotton is stored at 12 percent or less moisture content.

Parnell feels that the storage of cotton in modules can be beneficial to cotton production in the Blacklands both now and in the future. The practice is already widespread in cotton producing areas of the South.

A grant for conducting the demonstration has been provided by Cotton, Inc., and Bush-Hog Huskey, a division of Allied Products Corporation, Lubbock.

A dutch-treat barbecue will be served following the demonstration portion of the program.

Animal Health Meeting Set... Cattle On Feed Up Slightly... Milk Production Declines... Next Crop Report Due Sept. 11.

A meeting to discuss proposed changes in brucellosis programs for Texas will be held Sept. 4 at 9:30 a.m. in Room 117, Sam Houston Building, Austin. Members of the Texas Animal Health Commission will listen to comments on proposed changes which would realign state regulations to conform with federal rules.

Brucellosis continues to be a major problem for the livestock industry in Texas.

CATTLE ON FEED in Texas as of Aug. 1 totaled 1,331,000 head, the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service at Austin notes. This is a five per cent increase over a month ago, but is 26 per cent below a year ago and about 50 percent lower than 14 months ago.

Nationwide, there were 5,932,000 head of cattle on feed as of Aug. 1. This is down one per cent from a month ago and 15 per cent below the same period a year ago.

Recent increases in feed grains have changed the price outlook for feeders in the coming months. A shortage of fed beef could occur later this year, many feeders warn. This would be caused by a lack of profits among cattle feeders.

MILK PRODUCTION in Texas during July is down two per cent from the same period a month ago and is down one per cent below the previous month. Nationwide, milk production is down 1.4 per cent from a year ago.

WHILE THE AUGUST CROP REPORT has now become history, don't forget that the September crop report will be out shortly. Sept. 11 is the date for its release, and producers, consumers, and speculators will be watching for it eagerly.

Meanwhile, crop harvesting continues in a big way throughout the state. Cotton harvest is picking up speed and with hot, dry weather it should move along rapidly. First bales have been reported in a number of Blackland counties.

Sorghum harvest is now more than half finished throughout the state. Prospects on the High and Low Plains are considered good to excellent. Rainfall in some parts of the state has caused some slowdown of the harvest.

Corn harvest is underway in the southern half. Yields this year for the state read like a midwestern production report. The estimated per acre yield for Texas is 105 bushels per acre. This is the first Texas crop to exceed 100 bushels per acre in 54 years.

Rice harvest is at the half-way completion mark. Yields generally have been satisfactory.

Vegetable harvest is also making a lot of progress throughout the state. On the High Plains, only a few onions remain to be harvested.

In North Texas, harvesting of peas, tomatoes, okra, squash and watermelons continues. Grape and plum harvest is also active.

Spring and summer gardens are becoming victims of hot weather in the central part of the state, but fall vegetable land preparation is underway.

IT CONTINUES TO BE NECESSARY to submit suspected screwworm cases to the fly lab at Mission.

Cotton Harvest Report

Cotton harvesting is gaining momentum in the Upper Coastal Bend and Winter Garden areas, reports J. B. Russ, Officer in Charge. According to the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, harvesting in the Central Texas Blacklands is expected to begin shortly. Gathering operations in the Upper Coastal Bend is nearing the one third completion mark.

Quality statistics for the week ending August 22 showed 74 percent of the cotton was classed in the White grades. A further breakdown showed grades 40 and 41 accounted for 51 percent of the total classed and grade 31, 20 percent. Eight percent of the cotton classed was reduced in grade due to Bark or Grass.

Market activity for the week has been inactive as farmers are not satisfied with prices being offered. A small number of 31s, 41s, and 51s with staple lengths of 34 to 36 and a good micronaire reading, has sold in mixed lots. The prices received by farmers from 45 to 47 cents.

TEXAS TALK

By Skip Hobbs

With one farm bill dead as a result of veto, Washington lawmakers are now at work on a second one. Members of the Senate and House Agricultural committees are predicting early fall as the time the new bill should be ready for formal consideration. From reports which have come out so far the consensus is that the measure will be pretty much a rewrite of the emergency bill earlier this year. Higher dairy, grain and cotton supports are considered a priority along with a target price program for rice. Some sort of new approach for a commodity reserve system is reported to be under consideration and there may be some changes in the disaster payment program. Perhaps the most extensive part of the bill will be indirectly related to agriculture since support is said to be heavy for an expanded food stamp program.

New rates for long distance calls within Texas.

With Discount Periods and a new One-Minute Rate, you may be able to save money.

Rates for Long Distance calls within Texas have just changed.

For you—the telephone customer—it means most rates are going up.

But you may be surprised to learn that rate changes won't necessarily bring higher telephone bills.

Because with our new discount for dialing your own calls, you can better control your Long Distance costs.

In some cases, you may be able to save money on your Long Distance bill by taking advantage of these rates.

For example, there's a new one-minute rate on all calls that you dial yourself—without the operator's help.

Under the old rate, the initial rate period was for three minutes. Now on One-Plus dialed calls the initial rate period is one minute.

That means you can save by reducing the length of your call.

DISCOUNT RATE PERIODS FOR ONE-PLUS CALLS WITHIN TEXAS
	Mon	Tues	Wed	Thurs	Fri	Sat	Sun
8 a.m. to 5 p.m.	Day Rate Period Full Rate						Eve 30% Dis- count
5 p.m. to 11 p.m.	Evening Rate Period 30% Discount
11 p.m. to 8 a.m.	Night and Weekend Rate Periods 40% Discount
NOTE: The Evening rate applies all day on the following holidays: New Year's Day, July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, except in instances where the holiday falls into Night/Weekend period. In this case, the lower rate applies.
*On operator-assisted calls, the same rate applies at all hours on all days.

Nights and Weekends there will be a 40 per cent discount.

So, if you call later in the day or night, or on weekends, you're going to get the lowest rates possible.

But if you place calls through an operator, rates for these Zero-Plus calls will be higher, at any time—night or day. These include calls from a coin phone, collect, credit card and calls billed to a third number.

The initial rate period of three minutes will continue for these and other operator-assisted calls.

And, person-to-person calls will cost more than any other type call.

EXAMPLE OF NEW RATES FOR MAXIMUM DISTANCES
	#One-Plus	Each Additional One-Plus Minute
DAY RATE	50c or less	41c or less
EVENINGS 30% Discount	35c or less	29c or less
NIGHTS AND WEEKENDS 40% Discount	30c or less	25c or less
#One-Plus charges for 1 minute.
NOTE: One-Plus rates also apply on station-to-station calls placed with an operator where One-Plus facilities are not available.
*Rates quoted do not include taxes.

Simply put, if you dial the call yourself, you are going to get a lower rate. If you place your call through an operator, it will cost more.

Now our new rates offer you a choice.

By dialing your own calls and by taking advantage of our discount rate period, you can still get low rates and fast service.

WACO A pilot project being offered by Texas State Technical Institute and Southwest Texas State University is aimed at giving State Tech graduates the opportunity to receive a Bachelor's Degree. The student may be enrolled at State Tech and at SWTSU simultaneously. State Tech students may complete their associate degree work and begin working toward the Bachelors degree from SWTSU without having to transfer credits. Portions of the course work will be offered on the State Tech campuses by SWTSU faculty. Advanced technical training beyond the Associate Degree level will be offered by the State Tech faculty. The agreement is reciprocal. SWTSU juniors interested in receiving a technical degree may take part of the work at State Tech. The B. S. degree has two options. The student may major in the technical area. Curricula for this degree will include management courses, academic courses, and advanced technical training. The other option, a Bachelor's in Occupational Education, is an individualized program to train technical teachers. This degree is tailored to the needs of the individual depending upon the student's major.

Dr. Maurice Roney, president of State Tech, said this program has the promise of filling a great void by providing well trained technical-vocational teachers and technicians. He called it a "unique, high quality individualized program." For additional information, interested persons may contact Dr. Jim Burden on the James Connally Campus in Waco.

Air Force Has Survey Of Airmen

Good educational and training opportunities, world travel, and the chance to mature faster are among the top reasons why young people are enlisting in the Air Force. This information was gathered recently from airmen basics in a survey designed to help Air Force recruiters deal more effectively with potential recruits. Other reasons given were patriotism, high civilian unemployment rates, wider choice of assignment, better quarters and food, being treated with respect, and being associated with higher quality people. Family pressure, less stringent basic training, and less danger were least often mentioned as important factors for selecting the Air Force.

Interest in flying and aircraft was considered important by less than half of the airmen basics surveyed. The survey findings also indicate the airmen gave careful consideration to which service they selected. More than half reported they had talked to other recruiters before enlisting. More than half of the airmen had formed no opinion about an Air Force career; one third said they did plan to make careers; and about four percent said they would not make a career in the Air Force.

It's Back to School Time...
Those two inseparables--a boy and his jeans--will make fashion news on the school scene this fall. His favorite indigo blue denim or colored corduroy rank among front runners.

Topping those jeans is the old faithful T-shirt. It's updated this year with brightly designed front motifs of scenic prints, cartoon characters, Bicentennial designs, or '76 Olympic pictures.

The more dressy look includes colored corduroy and brushed denim for slacks and western cut jackets. Brightly colored shirts and turtlenecks complete the style.

Older boys who like sweaters will be seen in cardigan and pullovers in rich, earthy browns, greens, and rust.

Turning to shoe styles, the athletic canvas shoe featured in the bicentennial colors and the western look in cowboy boots complete the school wardrobe.

Girls in the Class...
Back to school will wear prettier, more sophisticated clothes than last year.

Big tops and striped and girded sweaters coordinate with pants and skirts for a stylish appearance.

Pinafores and jumpers take the head of the dress class.

And the butcher apron will be a new look this fall. Sportswear stays popular with the two-piece denim look in plain and patchwork for jeans and shirtjackets as a favorite.

Fall colors are loden, forest and olive greens, and earth tones and rusts. Burgundies and plum, camel and gray will be fashionable too.

Turning to fabrics, corduroy is in--in prints and solids, and flannels with suede trim are the favorites.

Saddle oxfords and crepe-soled platform loafers teamed with brightly colored knee socks and toe hose complete the school look.

Teaching children safety measures for getting to and from school is serious business--but parents can use a "play" approach to make it easier.

First thing to do is talk with the children to see how much they remember about walking on the correct side of the street, crossing traffic, and stopping at stop signs.

Then develop a road-precautions game. This can be done by substituting appropriate safety questions for the ones in their favorite game. Base the questions on the things they need to remember about safety.

Another suggestion is to make a trial run with the children before the first day of school. Walk down the correct streets and go through all the motions--pretending getting onto the bus and follow through all the things that happen there. Or ride bikes to the school ground and be sure the youngsters know bicycle safety rules and where to park their bikes.

The whole family can participate in these activities. View safety as something positive to do--instead of a defensive maneuver.

Briggs - Schoppe Unite By Vows

Miss Pamela Gayle Briggs and Alfonse Lloyd Schoppe Jr. were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony on Sunday afternoon, August 3 at Saint Joseph's Catholic Church in Marlin. Father Frank Miller performed the ceremony.

The bride is the great niece of Mr. and Mrs. Carline Earl Pharis of Marlin.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfonse Lloyd Schoppe of Cameron.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, wore a designer original ivory silk organza jeweled "A" line gown. French alencon lace trimmed the molded empire bodice, portrait neckline, wore long sleeves and lace scalloped the hemline with a chapel train. She wore a Cameo necklace belonging to her great grandmother. Her cathedral length English illusion Mantilla outline in lace was held with a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and cream carnations.

Miss Marsha Macha was the maid of honor. Misses Susan Rowell, cousin of the bride, Kathy Schoppe and Bernadette Schoppe, sisters of the groom, were bridesmaids. Virginia Schoppe, niece of the groom, was flower girl. They wore formal green and pink print chiffon dresses and net head pieces. They each carried a pink carnation.

Robert Schoppe was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were George Schoppe, brother of the groom, Randy Dieterick and Bobby Fritz. Jeffery Neumann was ring bearer. Michael Schoppe was commentator. Ushers were Tommy Jackson, Jerry Dresner, and Jerome Schoppe.

Miss Faye Boucher was organist and Mrs. Mike Nerhing was soloist.

The reception was held at the Allen House where Miss Peggy Macha presided at the bride's book.

The house party included Misses LaShawn Dieterich, Patricia Brewer, Mmes. Freddie Hill, Eleanor Mynar, Georgia Knesek, Annie Vavra, Robert Macha, and Albert Meroney.

After a honeymoon to Nashville, Tenn. the couple will make their home in Marlin where the groom is employed as manager at Safeway.

MRS. ALFONSE LLOYD SCHOPPE, JR.

A&M Mothers Meet, Mrs. Fuchs Heads Group

The first meeting of the Executive Board of the Federation of Texas A&M University Mothers' Clubs for 1975-76 will be held on Saturday, August 30, 1975 at the Memorial Student Center on the Texas A&M University campus.

Federation officers will be hostesses at a coffee from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. in the Birch Room (Room 205). The Board meeting will follow in the Assembly Room at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Fred L. May Jr. of San Antonio, Federation president, presiding. All club presidents, district chairmen, and executive board members are urged to attend.

Dr. Jack Williams, president of Texas A&M University, will address the group. Heads of various departments on campus will present activities and needs of their respective departments. Club projects for the coming year, along with other business, will be discussed and adopted at this time.

Mrs. Leo Fuchs, Cameron, is president of the Milam County A&M Mothers' Club.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wimmer of Cameron announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Louise, to Timothy Benjamin Shaunfield, son of E. W. Shaunfield of Rosebud.

The couple plans an October 4 wedding in St. Monica Catholic Church in Cameron.

Showers Fete Bride

On Tuesday night, June 10, a miscellaneous shower was given for Miss Briggs at the home of Mrs. Cullen Rogers. Hostesses were Mrs. Rogers, Misses Patricia Brewer, and Jackie Childs.

A miscellaneous shower was given for Miss Briggs in the home of Mrs. Weldon Jeske. Hostesses were Mrs. Jeske, Mrs. Freddie Hill, Mrs. Glen Neumann, and Mrs. James Hicks.

On July 13, there was a miscellaneous shower given for Miss Briggs in the home of Mrs. Robert Macha. Hostesses were Misses Marsha Macha, Kathy Schoppe, and Bernadette Schoppe.

On Wednesday night, July 30, a miscellaneous shower was held for Miss Briggs in the home of Mrs. Buddy Woodard of Marlin. Hostesses were Mrs. Woodard and Miss Elaine Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Schoppe of Cameron honored their son, A. L. Schoppe Jr. and his fiancée, Miss Pamela Briggs and their wedding party with a rehearsal dinner August 2 at their son's home at 303 Vance Street.

College Notes

Edward N. Whitley of Cameron received his undergraduate degree from Texas A&M University.

Lesters Host OES

Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Lester were hosts to members of Cameron Chapter Eastern Stars, families, and friends, for a picnic supper at their lake in the country. Rev. Stanley Vodicka and the Jimmy Thompson family were special guests. The moonlit setting made for a delightful evening by the lake. This was the occasion to commemorate the founding of Eastern Star many years ago by Rob Morris.

20th Century 'Soddies' May Ease Energy Crisis

Now that we've learned to cook like a caveman (on a backyard barbecue), we're going to start living like him (in a hole in the ground). At least that's the whimsy that comes to mind as scientists dig into the idea of underground housing to save energy for heating and cooling.

Their tests and calculations are anything but whimsical. They show that buried buildings may save 75 percent of what it takes to heat or cool buildings above ground, the National Geographic Society says.

Most of the subsurface buildings now planned by architects and builders are nothing like tunnels, mine shafts, or caves.

Buried Bookstores

Designs are intended to save the occupants as much as possible from feeling they are living or working underground. Many below-ground buildings open onto large dug-out courtyards that trap light and sunshine.

To test energy savings of underground buildings, the National Science Foundation has granted $206,400 for instruments to be installed in a buried bookstore on--or under--the campus of the University of Minnesota. A similar bookstore at Ithaca, New York, serves Cornell University students.

Whatever they learn may not be all that new. Sixty-five to 100 years ago hundreds of thousands of Americans lived relatively snugly underground as they pioneered the largely treeless plains.

At first they often lived in dugouts, usually greatly enlarged burrows of prairie dogs or other animals along the low hills.

Sometimes the roofs were crushed by wandering herds of buffalo. But with such amenities as a buffalo robe over the door and with a chimney hole in the dirt roof, occupants faced up to winter's worst.

"Our dugout was so warm," a Nebraska homesteader's wife recalled, "that during the blizzard of 1888 we sat in it and let the fire go out."

Prairie Marble

After a year or so they usually moved up to sod houses, low-lying with walls of buildings blocks carefully cut from the sod of the prairie itself. Prairie marble, they called it.

From 1870 to 1910 more than a million sod houses were built on the plains stretching from southern Texas to mid-Canada.

It took about an acre of prairie grassland to provide enough of the two-foot blocks of turf for the average small house. Walls were two feet thick, and a small house might weigh 90 tons.

A howling blizzard was unheard inside. Even if the supper fire of buffalo chips went out at bedtime, the temperature rarely dropped to freezing by morning. In the summer a soddy was as cool as a cave.

Soddies could not burn, withstanding both prairie grassfires and flaming Indian arrows.

Floors were dirt, pounded hard. Sometimes a snake or prairie dog might borrow up in the middle of the floor to the surprise of all.

"I never get wet til it happens to rain," mused an old song of life in a sod house. Roofs were usually willow poles and brush covered with sod, which dripped mud during a gully-washer and for a day after.

Sod houses usually caved in after a few years--but not before a wooden house could replace it, the tenants hoped. A few soddies survive today--perhaps as examples of how to beat the energy crisis.

Fact Sheet Out On New Commission

AUSTIN — Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale has prepared a citizen fact sheet on the new Public Utilities Commission and says it is ready for distribution.

The sheet was designed to give citizens basic information about how the commission will operate, when the new law will take effect, and how citizens can involve themselves in the utility rate process.

"More extensive information will be available as the commission begins its work," Kubiak said. "But the information I have compiled will give interested Texans a handy source of reference on the new public utility statute."

The sheet is available from Kubiak's Capitol office in Austin. The address is R. G-66-D-1, State Capitol, Austin, Tx 78767.

Wood Siding Gains; Brick Still Leads

For exterior wall material on new one-family homes, wood and wood products gained slightly last year, compared to 1973, reports the U.S. Bureau of the Census.

Brick held steady at 35 percent, but wood siding rose two points to 32 percent of houses built. Among other sidings, aluminum rose two points to 12 and stucco slipped two, to 10 percent.

Wild Blue Yonder

It's just an old toy—yet in his imagination this boy can climb to supersonic heights with it.

In his fancy, he is at the controls, soaring high above the earth. One step more, and he will pilot a rocket to the moon.

It may well be that these dreams, moon and all, will someday become reality for this young man. Meantime, there is countless wonder and joy in his boyish fancies.

There should be countless wonder and joy, too, in his church experience. Non-churchgoers are apt to think that religion is a dull, dour, fearsome matter. Rather, it should be one of the most glorious parts of life.

Look deeply into your own religion. Go to the church of your choice this Sunday.

Dr. Evan R. Goltra, a recently retired U. S. Air Force colonel, has been employed by Aluminum Company of America as medical director at its Rockdale Works, according to Fred P. Bergeron, Alcoa's Texas area manager.

The 27-year service veteran will assume his duties at the huge Central Texas smelter on September 1. At the time of his retirement, Dr. Goltra was assigned to Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio where he was commander of the USAF School of Aerospace Medicine.

The California native received his bachelor's degree in 1943 from Dartmouth College in New Hampshire and his doctor of medicine degree from Long Island College of Medicine in New York in 1947. He is also a graduate of Harvard School of Public Health in Boston, Mass.

He served as intern and resident in internal medicine at the Grace Hospital in New Haven, Conn., prior to entering the U. S. Army Medical Corps in July 1948.

After serving as surgeon to the joint Brazilian-United States Military Commission in Rio De Janeiro from 1952 to 1955, he transferred to the U. S. Air Force and attended the first course in aviation medicine.

He held subsequent assignments in Massachusetts, Ohio, Florida, Alaska, and Texas.

Dr. Goltra is author and co-author of seven professional publications in the field of aerospace medicine.

He held the rating of Chief Flight Surgeon and is certified by the American Board of Preventive Medicine. He is a member of the Aerospace Medical Association, American Public Health Association, the American College of Preventive Medicine, the American College of Physicians, Texas Public Health Association, Society of USAF Flight Surgeons, and Association of Military Surgeons.

Deck Lends Space In Lieu Of Moving

Many homeowners, deterred by inflated costs from buying new houses, have expanded their living space by moving outdoors.

Decks of any size can be added almost anywhere along the house, or free-standing in the yard, to accommodate outdoor living activities.

An eight-page color booklet full of deck ideas is available for 25 cents in coin from Western Wood Products Assn., Dept. 502-P, Yeon Bldg., Portland, Or. 97204.

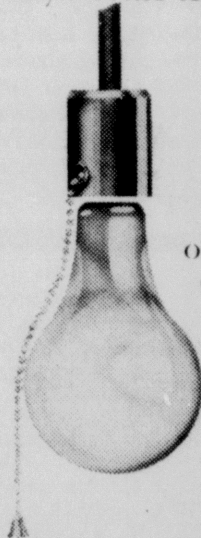

Lone Star makes a case for the onyx bottle.

Look at the Lone Star bottle. The difference between it and any other beer bottle is night and day.

All other beer bottles let in light. The clear ones a lot, the green and brown ones a bit less.

But only the Lone Star onyx bottle lets in none.

This is not a good idea.

Light is the natural enemy of beer. Sunlight, lamplight, candlelight—it doesn't matter—all will speed up a beer's natural fermentation and cause it to spoil.

So, with Lone Star, it's strictly "lights out".

Close only counts in horseshoes.

Since light can penetrate their bottles, the other brewers must hide that shortcoming behind a veil of cardboard. And their carton does help.

But, alas, it is still rather badly exposed on the ends.

And, of course, on the side and top these cartons have a lot of expensive printing that you-know-who ends up paying for.

That's six of one. Now, half a dozen of another is that since Lone Star's onyx bottle lets in no light at all, Lone Star has no reason at all to put those onyx bottles into a cardboard pack.

That about wraps it up.

You're looking at—or, rather, through—a piece of shrink film. Obviously, it's not designed to keep any light out, but we don't care because our bottle is. All we want the film to do is hold six bottles together so you can carry them.

And, since you can see our bottles through it, we don't have to waste money plastering our name all over it. We can spend it keeping high the quality of the Lone Star inside.

What you don't see is what you get.

If you really care about bottled beer, buy the only bottle that really cares for the beer inside. Lone Star, in 12-oz. non-returnables. Look for our new 6-pack at your store.

Hornets To Test Yoemen Strength

In the second controlled scrimmage of pre-season, Coach Ed Cauley's Yoemen will travel to Gatesville and will begin play Friday at 8 p.m. The junior varsity will also be traveling to Gatesville and will begin play at 6:30 p.m. Gatesville will provide 3A strength to prepared the Yoemen for the non-district season opener against Taylor. Gatesville is picked 9th after returning 3 offensive and 3 defensive veterans from that 3-7 unit. The Gatesville nucleus revolves around their ends, Steve Niemeier, 6-4, 185; and Frank Hopson, along with returning halfback Mike Fjsher.

Gatesville will set up a 5-3 defense in their '75 bid for the district championship.

According to Ed Cauley, the Yoemen's positioning will be close to the same as was played against A&M Consolidated.

The Yoe freshman team will not be playing Friday night, according to freshman coach Ken Poole.

Murray-Go-Round

QUICKIES:

Remember Billy Pete Huddleston, the tough-as-nails little Pine-Knot Aggie running back out of Iraan, Texas? Can't you hear Bear Bryant drawing, "Billy Pete, come heah!" Well, Huddleston, a graduate of A&M's outstanding engineering school, owns a successful engineering company in Houston. One of Billy Pete's employees is another Aggie name out of the past, George Mehaffey, the firebrand Aggie basketball player of the Late Fifties. George you recall, was Rice's top cage assistant for five years.

When Jim Yarbrough, the 230-pound sophomore UT linebacker out of Galveston, reported to Austin a day before the dormitory opened, he spent the night with his old coach, Texas Schoolboy Veteran Bill Stages, now a resident of the capital city

The naming of Roy McMillin to manage the New York Mets brought a ton of nostalgia. It fetched memories of an early fall evening at Tyler in 1947. Half the Tyler Junior College's first football team was slouched on the front steps of a rooming house the college had rented while the athletic dorm was under construction. Holding court, in the front of the steps, were two stars of Tyler's Class C East Texas League. Happily pitching a ball into the air was a slight, red-headed, freckled 17-year old. He had introduced himself as "Roy McMillin." "Who is he," yours truly asked from a porch swing. "He's the Tyler shortstop," answered a knowledgeable East Texan, "and, the way he fields the ball, he's on his way to the major leagues." He was.

When the Houston Aggies recently honored their Football Genius Emory Bellard at the Marriott, they presented him with a new leisure suit. "So help me," Mehaffey chuckles those pants were burnt orange. "Bellard took one look and said, 'That's a good looking brown pair of trousers.'" The Aggies roared.

Speaking of Iraan, Texas. It may be a hold-in-the-road, but it is also home of the legendary Lewis (Bud) McFadin, 6-5, 245-pound 1949-50 University of Texas guard. Bud, who was of course, later a defensive tackle terror at Denver of the AFL, is ranching near Houston. St. Jo, Texas, not far from Iraan, produced Harley Sewell, another UT All-American guard, who became an All-Pro at Detroit in the Bobby Layne era.

SPORT SPOTLIGHT

By FORREST GUESS

Harmony...

It's finally happened! I learned that Coach Ed Cauley and band directors Jerry Bartley and Gary Beach have worked together to offer band to athletes.

As scheduling once had it athletes were unable to participate in band. So the choice had to be made, either athletics or band.

It's a hard choice, and to some young people, a choice that allowed a stigma to exist between band and athletics.

Some players of football find their talents swing towards music and it was tough to join band as a freshman after missing the first three years.

Mac Davis sings, "I believe in music" and I believe in music and athletics. I'm glad to see music and athletics working together to benefit the students today and for tomorrow.

"We Have Talent..."

Coach Ed Cauley started out his speech at Monday night's booster club with, "We have some outstanding talent and talent that is experienced."

"We don't have different strings, we just have players to fit particular situations, and we replace them when the situation changes," Cauley added. "Michael White, Dennis Hollas, and Donald Komar gave us tremendous effort Friday night."

Throughout the evening Coach Cauley referred to his philosophy of having fun while playing football. "I want them to have fun. We are going to have fun. If you win 15 games and the state championship and don't have fun, it's just not worth it," Cauley said.

About the pressure of being picked number one, Cauley replied, "I don't feel the pressure, it might be self imposed pressure, and I know whatever happens, we are going to have a good season."

"They are just a great group, they're not boastful, but they know how to get the job done and I'm real proud of them," Cauley said.

Depth Is The Key...

After viewing the Friday night scrimmage, the most impressive element the Yoemen possess for the '75 season is their depth.

When I saw all that talent standing on the sidelines while the first string were on the field, it's no wonder why Cameron is picked #1.

While most coaches have a hard time filling positions, it seems that the tough job for the Yoemen will be to say who cannot play.

"Band, Got That Spirit..."

Band director Jerry Bartley closed the Monday marching rehearsal with "Band, you've got that spirit and let's keep it up!" Indeed they do. Excitement for the opening football game is enhanced by the Yoe band.

It is an impressive sight to see a band that has that spirit and drive that Jerry Bartley has instilled in the Yoe Band.

About the new format the band will be using for their half-time performances, Bartley said, "The band this year will perform maneuvers using a pinwheel pattern to change positions on the field."

The half-time ceremonies will begin with an entrance of the percussion across the field before the band marches out to their fanfare positions. Different sections of the band will be featured during the half-time ceremonies," Bartley added.

Nothing can add to a football game better than the Yoe High band.

Yoemen Lash A&M Cons. In Scrimmage

The Cameron Yoemen availed speed, strength, and depth in their 3-0 lashing of A&M Consolidated in their Friday night opening scrimmage at Yoe Field.

The 28 Yoemen found it as easy as 1-2-3 and crossed the magic line 3 times to send the 3A Consolidated team back to Bryan.

A&M Consolidated is picked 8th in their district and are rebuilding with 6 offensive and 7 defensive holdovers from that 2-7-1 unit.

Three Yoemen filled the shoes of the all important quarterback position. They were seniors Michael White and Dennis White, and junior Donald Komar. Michael White led the team with the first offense and took the opportunity to dash across for the opening point of the controlled scrimmage.

Passing was Hollas' attack and it was a spark that sent the Yoemen in for the next point. Komar also led the offensive attack to pick up the final point.

Another tough Yoe defense can be expected as the unit led by Joe Smitherman, Jafus White, Brian Cobb, Frank Tena, and a list as long as the team roster, crushed the

A&M Consolidated offensive attack.

Depth, depth, and more depth continued to fill the slots, and there was little difference between first and second teams. It's anybody's pick to fill the shoes on the powerful Yoemen unit.

Cauley To Help Select All-Stars

Jack Hayes, president of the Texas High School Coaches Assn., announced that Yoe High Athletic Director Ed Cauley has been selected as a member of the All-Star selection committee for the South All-Stars.

Cauley will be responsible for selecting the class 2A players that will make up the South All-Star team at the Houston coaching school in August '76.

The All-Star game will be played in the Astrodome in Houston. The coaches have not been selected for either team.

About the position, Cauley said, "This is a tremendous honor and responsibility which I am looking forward to."

In July, Cauley was also selected from Region III to serve on the committee for presenting candidates for vice-president of the Texas High School Coaching Association.

Cauley stated, "I feel like the reputation and state-wide publicity Yoe has received has allowed me to be honored with this position. I feel like this is a reflection in our community and school and I appreciate being associated with both."

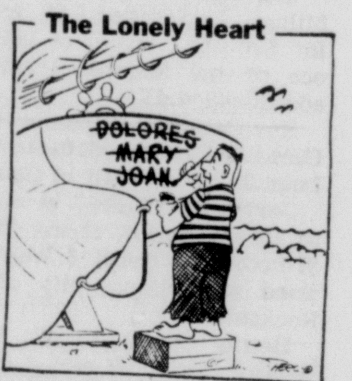

Beware In Buying Device

The Coast Guard advises anyone purchasing a Personal Flotation Device (PFD) not to buy any device that is being advertised as a reconditioned "Coast Guard Approved" apparatus, or which appears to be damaged in any way. These devices are defective and may not be of any help in saving your life.

Early reports stated that defective PFDs were being sold as reconditioned "Coast Guard Approved" devices or "Factory Seconds."

The Coast Guard requires that any item sold as "Coast Guard Approved" be made of new materials and also meet applicable requirements. "Factory Seconds" or unserviceable devices do not fall into this category.

Anyone who intentionally sells a defective device is in violation of Federal law.

Plan B How to save electricity with refrigerator-freezers

1. Defrost regularly. More than 1" of frost will act as insulation and causes your refrigerator/freezer to work harder to maintain a proper temperature. Replace worn door gaskets to prevent cold air loss.
2. Keep refrigerator temperature setting between 35° and 40°—freezer setting at 0°. (Use thermometer to check.)
3. Adjust temperature up 2° or 3° if you'll be away several days.
4. Don't leave door open unnecessarily. Close quickly.
5. Avoid overcrowding. It restricts cold air flow around food and overworks unit.
6. Cover all liquids placed in frost-free units. (Moisture causes frost and needless defrosting.)
7. Keep condenser coils on back and bottom of your refrigerator/freezer free of dust for more efficient operation.
8. Cook double recipes and freeze half for future use.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it: natural gas, coal and oil. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

When you pass a TP&L office, warehouse, generating plant or other facility, you'll see that we've turned off all non-essential lighting. And, in as many other ways as possible, TP&L is reducing its own uses of electricity.

If you would like additional information on conserving electricity, call or see the Customer Service Representative in the TP&L Office.
